

Lowland Streaked Tenrec

(Hemicentetes semispinosus)

Basic Pokémon

LOWLAND STREAKED TENREC

50 HP ⚡

Tenrecidae Pokémon, Length: 6", Weight: 0.5 lbs

Stridulation rubs parts of its body together emitting electric current sounds to communicate with teammates
20 damage

20

Bucking raise quills and violently bucks head at opponent 10 damage

weakness

resistance

retreat cost

When cold out these Pokémon conserve heat by reducing body temperature to match the air. Enters a deep sleep when too cold to function. LV. 14 #22

Basic Pokémon

BABY LOWLAND STREAKED TENREC

⚡

Tenrecidae Pokémon, Length: 6", Weight: 0.5 lbs

Newborn

Lowland streaked tenrecs lack spines, this will develop once he's born

Litter Size

sizes can be 5-8 young

Weaning

18-25 days old

Come on! We gotta catch them all!

VERMIVORE

200 HP

Healthy diet

The lowland streaked tenrec's diet consist of mainly worms but can also include other invertebrates.

weakness
+20

resistance
-30
-take card-

Illus. T. Beas retreat cost
★★★★

BASIC

COMMUNITY

HP 60 ★

Active night and day: they form burrows that connect to other group members burrow creating complex burrow systems to confuse opponents

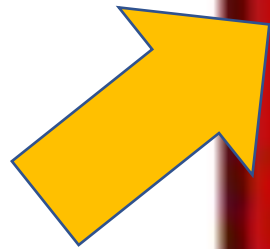

weakness
x2

resistance

retreat cost
★

Family units can be as big as 20 members!

Play me!

They can communicate through stridulation, like in this video, or through tongue clicks. Although it has not been proven, they may also communicate through echo location. If you hear them make a “crunch” or “put-put” sound the Pokémon feels threatened and may attack!

Gestation Tracker

A Lowland Streaked Tenrec can live up to 2.6 years, making him a great Pokémon companion! You're most likely to catch one during their mating season September-December. Only catch it if it is sexually mature, or 25 days old. You should also know that their biggest weakness is habitat loss.

Citations

Lowland Streaked Tenrec,
bioweb.uwlax.edu/bio203/s2014/mcgrane_kyle/habitat.htm.
“Lowland Streaked Tenrec.” Lowland Streaked Tenrec - Facts, Diet, Habitat & Pictures on Animalia.bio, animalia.bio/lowlandstreaked-tenrec.